Oil and Gas in the North Sea

BP first struck oil in Britain 38 years ago, when it discovered the massive Forties field, the largest ever found in the UK.

It became a symbol of the oil boom, Producing 500,000 bpd. Today it has declined to about 50,000.

Gas has been here even longer - since 1965

People have fretted for decades about the point when North Sea Oil and Gas will run out, but technological advances and new finds keep pushing it forward.

Oil price over the last year = $32 - $147 per barrel
